Population ageing is a worldwide phenomenon. The health statuses of older people vary and it is influenced by many factors. The magnitude of the problems of older population is also expected to increase. Provision of affordable quality health care to older persons has emerged as a major concern for health system in India. National policy for older persons has recognized the older persons' right to health.

Home health care is a pioneer in bringing personalized and professional home health care services to the population in a quick and convenient within the comfort of one's home and delivering 70% of all health care services at home.

The SBMPINS recognizes "the need for establishing training courses for under graduate students required for taking care of old age people and family". Certificate course in Geriatric health care and Home health care is designed to develop specially for under graduate students. The outcome of the program will be to have more students prepared for providing competent care at the institutional and community levels. We are justly proud of all our students' accomplishment and assure to take care of older peoples in new horizons of development and bliss for country.
