Winters fall in the months of October to February in India are quite cold, especially in the Northern India. Students and faculty are advised to carry sufficient warm clothing.

Monsoons in India fall from July to September, and these months make the weather extremely humid.

MANSOON

Indian summers are too hot, from March to July, international students and faculty can carry light cottons.

They should wear clothes that are not very revealing.

Summer

Some religious places in India have dress codes, like covering your head, being barefoot, etc. Tourists are advised to comply with them, so as not to seem offensive towards the religious sentiments of the concerned community.

University has a NRI hostel with canteen within its campus. Students are advised to utilize in house canteen only as the food is less spicy,hygienic food and vegetables are served in the canteen and quality can be dubious in outside canteens and small restaurants.

Traffic rules

There are some Indian traffic rules you need to follow while in India. Given below is a list of some guidelines for ensuring traffic safety in India

Indian government recognizes the International Driver's License (IDL) though it is safer to rent a car with a professional driver.

If you are planning to stay in India for a long time and have a valid driver's license (not necessarily an IDL) issued by any competent authority in your country, then getting a driver license in India is no big problem.

If your International Driver's License (IDL) has expired, you can easily get a local driving license in India by submitting your expired license, along with a letter of introduction from your country's Embassy.

Traffic in India moves on the left side. So, be extra cautious while crossing the road, especially if your country follows right side driving.

To release the academic fatigue, to emphasize the need for physical fitness, to encourage sporting talents of students, the campus offers wide range of sports facilities.
