Thoughts of Student

A RARE DISEASE

You Implanted my seed when you started enjoying chewing tobacco, and smoking cigarette became a habit to you.

My growth started as non-small cell carcinoma at the apex of your lungs. I started giving you Ipsilateral shoulder pain and you took me as Osteoarthritis. My branches started to spread out and I took leisure of multiplying and invading your ribs, vertebrae and thoracic region. I caused pulsating pain in your chest and you believed you had developed myocardial infarction. There was drooping of your eyelids and you were diagnosed by Horner's syndrome.

CT scan did not reveal me but MRI did expose my truth. Till now, you might have realized how much difficult it is to identify me. I gave you so many signs for you to realize that it's me knocking your door too late. You started killing me by radiation therapy and chemotherapy. You were afraid for surgery as you realized it is too risky as I lie beneath so many structures. Now, let me introduce myself, I am Pancoast tumor a type of lung cancer that affects 5 out of 100 people. Consider yourself the unlucky one as I choose to grow in you
