As the Indian government strives to provide comprehensive health coverage for all, the country's rapidly developing health system remains an area of concern. There are disparities in health and health care systems in Nutrition, Genetics. He mainly addressed about:

- Nutritional problems or deficiencies occur when an individual's nutrient intake drops down consistently below the recommended level.
- Understanding the role of genetic and genomic components in human health and disease, and the cross-talk of these components with environmental factors, lifestyle and cultural practices, by facilitating cutting-edge research involving individuals, families and populations.
- Translating the understanding thus acquired for the improvement of human health by promoting development and dissemination of genomic methodologies and tools for prediction, diagnosis and prevention of disease, and for developing affordable therapeutic interventions.

He also explored about, the research papers to present in International conference by the students in forthcoming event in the month of August, 2023 at Akkamahadevi University, Vijayapur.

Expecting research papers on (priority areas):

- Rare Genetic Disorders: Affordable Diagnostics and Therapeutics
- Mutation spectrum of genetic and complex diseases in the Indian population
